The San Diego Promise 2017

The San Diego Promise provides two years of tuition at City, Mesa and Miramar colleges for first-time, full-time students. Leveraging funds provided by the state of California through the California College Promise, and with support of generous donors, the San Diego Community College District is ensuring that no deserving student is denied access to quality higher education due to lack of resources.

OVERVIEW

The San Diego Promise started as a pilot program in 2016 with 186 students. The following year, the program expanded to include nearly 700 students.

In October 2017, Governor Brown signed Assembly Bill 19. This bill created the California College Promise, a program providing free tuition for one year at California community colleges for full-time students. Funding from this program is expected to significantly bolster our existing San Diego Promise program. As a result, the San Diego Promise will extend the program to some eligible students into their second year.

Today, the San Diego Promise serves as a completion program – one that provides funding for two years of community college education for participating students.
